The Oil Paintings of Larry Felder: Old & New

Don't miss artist Larry Felder's first solo exhibition since joining the Highlands Art League two years ago. He will be showing his older, large paintings in MOTA's upstairs gallery, and his newest still life works in MOTA's downstairs gallery.

Felder is well known for his finely detailed realism in oils. He refers to his most recent work as his "Box Series" with closeups of subjects that come from a collection of old tools and memorabilia that he has acquired through the years.

Currently Larry Felder is Vice Chairman of the Highlands Art League where he teaches an oil painting class called, "Mornings with Larry." He has won numerous awards for his work and has been selected to show in the most recent Oil Painters of America (OPA) National and Eastern Regional Shows. OPA is known for its juried memberships and for exhibiting the "best of the best" in traditional oil painting.

His personal portfolio may be viewed at www.larryfelder.weebly.com, or on his son's gallery site in San Antonio, Texas at www.feldergallery.com.
